Centre for Advanced Studies in Environmental Law & Policy (CASELAP) and School of Law , University of Gothenburg have strengthened their relationship with new agreements to bolster research collaborations, students' and staff exchanges.

Leading the talks on the partnerships, CASELAP Director, Prof. Nick Oguge said the collaboration was a great opportunity for both institutions to exchange ideas and address environmental and policy issues affecting societies across the globe.

On her part, Ms. Catharina Milkin, Director International Office, University of Gothenburg said, "In strengthening the active partnership between the university of Nairobi and Gothenburg, we will increase the number of student and faculty exchanges as well as promote scholarly and research collaborations between our two institutions on a variety of international issues."

Ms. Kajsa Wigren, International Coordinator, University of Gothenburg said, "Partnership with the University of Nairobi provides a wholesome, exciting and unique experience for our students."

A Memorandum of Understanding between the two universities was formally signed in 2013 and has so far seen more than 10 students and staff exchanges in the Schools of Business, Economics and Law.
